HISTORY

1892

The Lauzon family starts a food business in Montreal, later acquiring factories and becoming a major company in the agri-food sector—now in its seventh generation of success.

1930

Nathan Levitts opens a small deli on St. Laurent Boulevard in Montreal. A few years later, the family builds a small factory behind the store to produce hotdogs for local grocery stores. The Levitts family business quickly expands and becomes one of the top kosher food processing companies in Canada. Its many products are distributed throughout Canada and abroad.

2000

The company constructs a high-tech factory in Montreal. The Levitts family focuses on innovation and performance while maintaining the taste and tradition of its products. From the start, the business has been built on a passion for quality and local foods and products.

2004

The business is bought by the Lauzon group, and becomes primarily specialized in meat products.

2006

The company launches the new Smoked Meat Montreal Angus 500-g package in all major grocery stores. This product quickly becomes one of the company's flagship products. The Aliments Levitts team is proud to carry on the classics of Quebec and Canadian cuisine like smoked meat.

2008

Les Aliments Levitts inc. launches a typically Canadian product: maple pork ribs. This product is a huge success in hotels and restaurants and among consumers.

2012

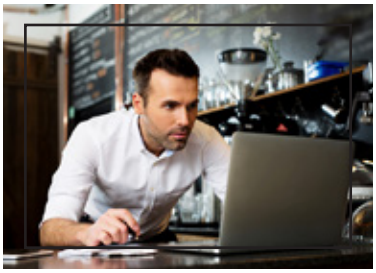
The factory operates on a continuous improvement model, and aims not just to meet but to exceed standards. To this end, a $2.5 million investment is made to improve air quality.

The Levitts team totals 75 employees dedicated to customer service. The company has successfully preserved its family values and strong ties with its business partners by developing close relationships with key players in the agri-food market and industry.

This same year, the company renovates its raw products department.

2015

2016



Levitts invests in online marketing and launches its first website.
